About your host, Greg Woodrow:

A champion Go-Kart and Race Car Driver, Greg Woodrow is the creative mind behind the G-Force Group.

As an expert in Motorsport partner programs, with over 25 years experience, and as the driving force behind the amazingly successful Mygale Racing teams in Australia and New Zealand, Greg's story is one of self-made success.

In the 1980s karting success came for Greg with his dogged determination to win and his attention to detail in every part of his motorsport life. This in turn led to the jump into car racing, initially in a one make series for Holden cars in the early 1990s, where his instant success surprised the series' established drivers. This in turn led to Greg making the move to Melbourne, the Australian home of Motorsport, to further his promising career.

Leaving his Brisbane job, and the life he knew, Greg made the commitment to a career in motorsport by launching his professional career in the well-worn tracks of the national Formula Ford series. Competing against drivers of the calibre of Mark Webber, Jamie Whincup, Marcos Ambrose and Will Power honed his skills while off-track the search for budget and corporate relationships became a part of everyday life.

While his outright speed and natural ability was unquestioned, the call-up to the top level or racing never came. Greg instead focused his energies on his burgeoning motorsport business, becoming the Australian and New Zealand importer for French Marque Mygale. Under Greg's control Mygale became the dominant brand in Open wheel racing, remaining unbeaten in National Formula Ford Championships since 2011.

Many of today's best racing drivers owe their start to the technical knowledge, business prowess and driver coaching that Greg has supplied. On the racing side Greg still keeps his hand in racing in Gt categories in his Porsche GT3 rocketship.
